

Common Denominator

(Geneviève Racette, Danielle Knibbe)

I remember how your face changed when she walked into the party
How you came and grabbed my arm and said my darling we should both leave
You told me on the car ride home
All the ways that she had done you wrong

She broke your heart
Tore it apart
Told everyone your darkest secrets
Ruined your life
You're so surprised
Yeah you did nothing to deserve this
You put the blame on her over and over
Baby for what it's worth when I look closer
You're the common denominator

I found some photos in your dresser you were smiling with some old friends
I asked you why I hadn't met them you got angry and then you said
Some bridges just have to be burned
And that's the moment when I learned

They broke your heart
Tore it apart
Told everyone your darkest secrets
Ruined your life
You're so surprised
Yeah you did nothing to deserve this
You put the blame on them over and over
Baby for what it's worth when I look closer
You're the common denominator

Always going off about your friends, your family, your exes
Never thought I'd be the one to see from perspective

I broke your heart
Tore it apart
Told everyone your darkest secrets
Ruined your life

You're so surprised
Yeah you did nothing to deserve this
You put the blame on me over and over (over and over)
Baby for what it's worth if you look closer
You're the common denominator
